TO LAY A NEW CABLE.

A New "Steel Snake" to Connect New York With Nova Scotia Direct.

New York, Aug. 29.—The steamship Mackay-Bennett came into port last night and anchored off Bedloe's Island. In her deep hold there are 180 miles of cable. In a few days the steamer will move from her anchorage and begin slowly to uncoil the "steel snake."

The present Mackay-Bennett cable runs from Canso, Nova Scotia, to Coney Island. When the new cable is laid a direct communication with this city will be established with a terminal point, probably at Pier A, North river.

The new transmitter of news is a four-wired cable and weighs fourteen tons to the mile.

The Mackay-Bennett has not been in this port since 1892, and she attracted much attention as she lay at her anchorage last evening.

The Mackay-Bennett is 270 feet long, forty feet wide and draws twenty-six feet of water. When the vessel goes to work she will lay sixteen miles of cable in the lower bay and connect Coney Island with Pier A. It will take several weeks to finish the work.

NOT A "QUIET WEDDING."

The One at Hamilton Hall Tonight Can Be Thus Described.

There will be a "hallelujah wedding" at Hamilton hall in Topeka tonight.

A hallelujah wedding is distinctly the property of the Salvation Army. No body else has dared to attempt one.

The occasion of this is the joining together of the hearts and hands and lives of two young Salvation Army people well known to the work in the west. They are Captain Walter Yager and Lieutenant Grace Kitsmiller.

The contracting parties arrived in Topeka last night—the bride from Dallas, Texas, where she has been on a furlough visiting her parents, and the groom from Kansas City, where he is stationed with the post there.

Both of them are at the home of T. J. Crouch, at 1013 Kansas avenue.

When a JOURNAL reporter called there today he found the happy couple in their own company. They were seated in a secluded corner of the parlor, and were talking it over in the way the entire human race is so familiar with. Salvation Army love is very much like the other brands in a good many particulars.

If you attend the wedding tonight you will like the bride in particular. She is a slender girl of eighteen, with light blue eyes and yellow hair that was braided in one plait down her back. She was undressed save for her Salvation Army pin at her throat, and she didn't need adornment. Her features were regular and her face bears that soft, happy expression that generally goes with such cases. She sat in a big rocking chair and rocked complacently, smiling the while as she looked at the slight young man next to her who is so soon to be her life comrade.

Why you want to know about me, there isn't much to tell. I was born in Columbus, Ohio, a little more than eighteen years ago. My father was a carpenter. When I was less than two years old we moved to Dallas, Texas, where we have since resided. I became a salvationist about one year and a half ago.

I was a member of the Free Presbyterian church of Dallas at the time and had been attending the meetings for some time. It was there I met Captain Walter. He was then with the post there. You know such things happen? Well, it was not long until I joined the army.

I have been in Topeka before. I was stationed here last year four months, in September, and left again in January. I hope lots of people will be at our wedding tonight. I want it to be nice.

The groom is a brown haired, brown eyed young man, and is also slender. He is twenty-three years of age, and was born at Clay Center, Kansas. He was converted to the Salvation Army faith about four years ago and has since been stationed at several places in the west and south. He came to Topeka in January and stayed awhile just after his Lieutenant Grace had left.

"That was hard luck," remarked the reporter.

"Yes, it was hard luck," responded the groom, "but we will see that it doesn't happen again."

The hall is handsomely decorated with autumn leaves ready for the event of the evening.

All the prominent officers of the Army in the surrounding states will be present. The first thing on the programme for this evening is the parade, which will take place on the avenue between 7 and 8 o'clock. All the members of the army in the city will be in the parade, and the visitors will also take a prominent part. The bridesmaids and the groomsmen will also be in the procession, but the contracting parties will not.

The ceremony will take place at about 8:30 and will be conducted by Major George Sullivan of Topeka. The maid selected are Captain A. M. Hart, Lieutenant A. Herron, Lieutenant S. Dordill and Lieutenant L. Barrett. The groomsmen will be Captain E. Cronwell, Captain L. Williams, Captain Claude Flood and Lieutenant J. Hester.

The ceremony will be much the same as those outside the Army, excepting that exactly the same solemnity will not be observed, and that it is very exacting in its declarations of allegiance to the Salvation Army.

There will be no attempt at gorgeous dress on the part of anyone connected with the wedding. The bride will wear the regulation blue uniform, excepting the customary white wedding veil will be added. The groom will wear only the uniform you see on the street every day.

After the ceremony there will be an ice cream supper.

DR. HOOVER DENOUNCED.

The State Board of Health Scores One of

The state board of health held its quarterly meeting in Topeka today. The members present were Doctors J. P. Stewart, A. J. Anderson, J. W. Jenney, H. W. Roby, P. Daugherty, Thomas Kirk and E. Swarts.

The following resolutions were introduced by Dr. Swarts and unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, an article appeared in the Halstead Independent which reflected on the honesty and integrity of the state board of health and we have good reasons to believe that Dr. M. J. Hoover is responsible for said article; and

Whereas, Dr. Hoover has been writing letters to the governor, claiming that he opposed the expenditure of $2,000 last year for the preservation of the public health against infectious and contagious diseases; and

Whereas, Dr. Hoover not only voted for the expenditure of $2,000, but seconded the motion to adopt the resolution which passed favoring such expenditure, as the proceedings of said meeting do show. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the members of the state board of health in executive session assembled denounce such article as a malicious falsehood, and that we denounce E. M. Hoover as a fabricator and a malinger of his professional associates, relative to the action of the board August 29, 1893.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be furnished the editor of the Halstead Independent and Dr. E. M. Hoover.

They Qu relled in Russian. Catherine Sparr, a member of the Russian colony living on railroad property in North Topeka, has had a warrant issued for the arrest of her neighbor, Peter Dash, for disturbing her peace. He is charged with calling her names, and threatening to "cut her head off" with an axe. The joint debate was carried on in their native language, and an eye-witness says that everybody present ran.

DELIA AND ALICE.

A Neighborhood Row on Lane Street in Police Court Yesterday Afternoon.

There was a special session of police court yesterday afternoon to try Delia Williams on the charge of disturbing the peace of Mrs. Alice Herbold.

Delia is colored, while Alice is white. Delia and Alice were once wont to live in the same door yard and bring their children until across the yard of the intervening lawn was checked with the representatives of the two families. But there came a time when this pleasant relationship must end. Alice arose to the dignity after a while of keeping a hired girl, which, Mrs. Williams says, "stuck her up so" that she no longer cared to continue the happy affiliations.

Then it was that the blow fell, and one day when Mrs. Williams' little Johnny tried to establish a fusion with the Herbold faction he failed so signally that the heads of the families could not resist the temptation to take it over across the intervening green. The language was thicker than the blood, and during the examination even City Attorney Hingate was compelled to blush and sometimes hang his head in shame.

During the progress of the quarrel, according to the testimony, Delia had said many things, and extended many invitations to Mrs. Herbold that were not engraved, nor properly addressed, and so Alice had been compelled to decline them without thanks.

The upshot of it all was that Judge Ensminger fined Delia five dollars, which she paid, and departed, happy that it was no worse.

REFUSED TO TESTIFY.

A Principal Witness in the Webb Case Declines to Testify.

In the W. W. Webb forgery case which will be tried in the district court next week, the sheriff is unable to subpoena one of the principal witnesses in the case. This witness is C. C. Colt, who at the time the case was brought was a detective in the employ of the Santa Fe. It was Colt who "worked up" the case against Webb and bought one of the scalpers' tickets with a forgery of Geo. T. Nicholson's extension stamps upon it.

It is assumed therefore that Colt would be the most damaging witness against the young ticket broker. Since the case was instituted, however, Colt has left the employ of the Santa Fe and is now a deputy United States marshal in Missouri. Those interested in the prosecution charge that the friends of Webb "influenced" Colt to withdraw from the case. Whether he was "influenced" or not, that is what Colt has done, and he declines to be a party to the prosecution of Webb. He is not in Kansas and the sheriff cannot subpoena a witness out of the state. Sheriff Burdick's only chance is to catch Colt on this side of the Kansas line and serve the subpoena. In case he would not appear he could be punished for contempt of court if he were afterward captured in Kansas. The sheriff has been trying all summer to reach him.

The state however claims to have a complete case against Webb without Colt's testimony.

JUDGE HAZEN'S FISH STORY

His Honor Lands the Biggest Catch at Excelsior Springs.

Judge Z. T. Hazen, of the district court, with A. W. Dana, L. S. Ferry and Justice Ferry, have returned from Excelsior Springs. Each member of the party fished diligently, but to Judge Hazen belongs the glory of making the only catch during the whole time. The party were waiting patiently one afternoon for bites, but the chiggers and mosquitoes did nearly all the work. Suddenly a thrill went through every heart. All eyes were directed towards the cork float on Judge Hazen's line. There could be no doubt of it. The cork trembled for a moment like a deer at bay, and then gave a convulsive wiggle and disappeared under the dark-brown waves. The judge took a firmer grasp on his pole and his eyes flashed as they do when he gives the evil deer eighteen months. The line was raised slowly at first and then with a sudden jerk the catch was landed on the bank. It was not a valuable catch from a sportsman's point of view, but it was lots better than nothing. It was a bullfrog as big as his hat with a green back and a melancholy croak. If they had only caught another frog there would have been frogs' legs enough to go around.

RECEIVERS TO MEET.

J. C. Wilson Leaves for New York to Meet Aldace F. Walker.

Receiver J. C. Wilson of the Santa Fe will leave tomorrow for New York, where he will meet the other two receivers and hold the first meeting since the appointment of Mr. Reinhardt's successor.

Mr. Aldace F. Walker, the new receiver, is expected to arrive in New York from Europe on Thursday, and Mr. H. Rossington of Topeka, who has been in Europe this summer, will arrive on the same steamer.

This will no doubt be an important meeting of the receivers, and its result will be watched with interest. At the conclusion of the meeting the receivers are expected to make a trip over the entire Santa Fe system.

NEW YORK WAKES UP.

A TRAGEDY, AVERTED.

A Painful Episode For Which a Fine Sledge Girl Was Responsible.

"I have just called, Miss Simpson," said the angry lover, "and say farewell, but before I say it I want you to know that I have discovered your falseness, and I despise you for it."

"Why, Billy, whatever is the matter?" "Oh, you know well enough. Maybe I didn't pass the gate last evening and see you with your head in another man's shoulder. Who is the happy man?"

"But, Billy, I haven't seen any man but you, dearest. Honest, I haven't."

"No, I suppose not. Then maybe I am blind, deaf and dumb and an idiot. Maybe you didn't have company last evening?"

"No, no, Billy, but my best friend, Emily, No, I didn't, and I think you are a wretch."

"And you didn't stand at the gate?"

"Oh, yes, we did. We were counting the stars in the big dipper, making wishes on them."

"Oh, yes, I suppose I was blind. Now, maybe you'll describe Emily to me."

"Why, she had on her Knox hat, her black blazer suit, a white shirt waist, with a black satin tie and a white duck vest. You know Emily, Billy."

"Billy—Um—m—I see."

And what might have been a modern tragedy was averted, and Billy made up at once.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

He Objected.

Pat Maher has long borne the reputation of being the champion egg eater of his locality and boasts that he once ate six dozen raw eggs, shells and all, at one sitting. But the boys got the better of one evening recently. As usual, they offered to give him all the liquor he could drink if he would swallow a certain number of eggs.

"Eat a dozen eggs, shells and all, in our presence, and you can get drunk at our expense," said the spokesman.

"Wan dozen him eggs!" exclaimed Pat, with a contemptuous laugh. "Why, that will be nothing but a lunch. Ho, ho, ho!"

"We didn't say hen eggs. You are to eat one dozen eggs of whatever kind are furnished you."

"All right, boys, I'm wld yeg. Ol'm just as equal t' goose or turkey eggs as Ol'm t' the fruit o' th' hin. Ol'm ready, lads."

The "boys" went over to the bar and procured a monstrous ostrich egg that had long ornamented the sideboard. It was fully 7 inches long and 4 inches in its smallest diameter. The contents of the shell had, of course, long been removed, but this fact was not apparent on casual inspection. The egg was carefully carried to the table by which sat Mr. Maher, humming and sniffling over the free drink which was soon to be his.

"Here's the first egg, Pat," said the spokesman quietly. "The waiters will be along with the other 11 presently."

Mr. Maher gazed with bulging eyes at the giant egg, then at the gang, each of whom preserved an impassive face. Suddenly he pushed his chair back from the table, buttoned his coat and fixed his battered hat firmly on his head. Then, with one reproachful finger directed at the shell upon the table, he said:

"Boys, it's not right, it's not right. Ol' didn't ask that thim eggs be all him eggs. Ol' would 'a' been satisfied with dock eggs or goose eggs—anything in reason. But whin ye bring th' p'geny up th' illyphant before me it is t' as four me to renounce me bargain wld ye. Ol' wouldn't eat wan o' them illyphant eggs if Ol' could."

Pat got no free liquor that evening.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Disgusted Father.

Rev. Whangdoodle Baxter of the Austin Blue Light tabernacle has a son who was educated for the ministry at a northern theological institute and from whom the old man expected great things. Last Sunday Rev. Whangdoodle Baxter, Jr., occupied his father's pulpit and preached a trial sermon on the beatitudes. It was wretched twaddle, and Whangdoodle, Sr., was a much disgusted parent.

"Well, paw, what did you think about de way I treated dem beatitudes?" asked Whangdoodle, Jr., who thought his sermon was immense.

"Yer luff out one ob dem beatitudes."

"Which war dat?"

"Blessed am dem what don't expect nuffin, for dey ain't gwinter be disappointed," replied the old man cynically.—Texas Siftings.

A New Water Nymph.

In public places the person least fitted to point out and explain points of interest is often the one who raises his voice above all the rest. Some visitors were strolling through an art gallery and had paused between the long rows of statuary.

"This," said the leader with a wave of his hand toward a creation in plaster—"this is Apollo, and that one over there is his wife, Apollonia."—"Youth's Companion."

Got Even.

"Hold yer hoss, sir," said a fellow to the driver of a weak looking steed as he halted opposite a hotel.

"No," said the driver ill naturally.

"Get out, he will not run away."

"Hold him up an keep him from fallin down, sir. Of course he can't run away."

—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

Wanted Another.

"Away," cried he, "away with the present order!"

"Why?" they asked him.

"Because it isn't fresh," said he. "Gimme another order of scrambled eggs!"—Indianapolis Journal.
